10 May 2015 . Ada Lovelace died young, at the age of 36, and Charles Babbage never built his Analytical Engine. Had Lovelace lived, and had Babbage actually built his invention, the computer would have been invented a hundred years before it was. Isn't that an astonishing thought?!

16 Aug 2016 . My fear, on picking this up, was that it would be a tiresome reduction of the work of two serious scientists to silliness. It's been described as "steampunk", which sets alarm bells ringing. I need not have worried. The only major tinkering with the historical record in the book is its proposal that Charles Babbage.

4 May 2015 . Lord Byron's daughter Ada Lovelace was, according to some, instrumental in creating the blueprint for the first computer in collaboration with Charles Babbage.

Unfortunately, both Lovelace and Babbage died before their proposed Analytical Engine became a reality. Here is the imagined world where they.
